WORK EXPERIENCE

Assistant Professor

Educational Activities

My role involves conducting the seminars for the following disciplines (Psychology - Cognitive Sciences, 2nd year):

- Introduction to Clinical Cognitive Sciences.

Research Activities

I am also involved in research regarding integrative models (personality, social-cognitive vulnerabilities, and learning paradigms) for explaining and predicting internalizing psychopathology. I am particularly interested in how traits related to emotional vulnerability, such as neuroticism, interact with cognitive vulnerabilities like looming maladaptive style within the context of evaluative conditioning to explain various internalizing symptoms, such as anxiety, panic, and depression.

In my research projects, I design and implement experimental studies using platforms such as Inquisit Lab and PsyToolkit. I also conduct data analysis with well-established statistical software, including R, SPSS, and AMOS.
